When Virginia Alice Cottey established a school for women; When the P.E.O. Sisterhood said “yes;” When a professor believed in you; When you realized your passion; When you had the confidence to succeed.

These, and so many other moments, have defined Cottey College and Cottey students since 1884. For 125 years, Cottey has offered an experience For Women, By Women, About Women—one that transforms lives. Here, women find their voices, their passions, their callings. Here, young women are the leaders, the scholars, and the stars. “Cottey College gave me a place for dreaming,” says Jennifer Warder ’90. She was president of Golden Key and remembers the moment she delivered her final speech—surprised by how comfortable and confident she had become. For Amy Hudley ’01, Cottey provided her an atmosphere where she was encouraged to try different things. “When I ran for Student Government Association president, it was a matter of setting my mind to do it.” For Miriam Stephens Kindred ’51, the moment was in 1978, “I became the first woman manager and stock broker at E.F. Hutton. I realized it was because of Cottey.” And for Donna Helm ’77, “Cottey taught me how to study and how to use my intelligence to make the most of a situation. I attribute this to the small, individualized attention you can only receive at a college the size of Cottey.”

Defining Cottey’s Future
In 2005, a planning committee of faculty, staff, and students worked together to envision the future of the College and chart a course for both short-term and long-term success. This collaborative effort resulted in two important documents, both of which are subtitled Building a Model for Women’s Education: the Cottey College Strategic Plan and the Cottey College Master Plan. The plans are living documents, designed to inspire and motivate for the sake of the amazing young women who attend Cottey today and those who will be part of Cottey College tomorrow. Rather than including platitudes and passive goals, the strategic and master plans define the specific actions required to realize our vision: “Cottey College will be known as a model liberal arts college for women’s education, providing opportunities to develop scholarship and creativity and to exercise responsibility, initiative, and leadership.”

According to a 2008 report by The White House Project, a national nonpartisan 501(c)(3) organization working to advance a richly diverse, critical mass of women into leadership positions, “Women make up more than half of the U.S. population but less than one-fifth of its leaders. Yet, in no field do women make up the majority of leaders.” Cottey College prepares women to lead boldly and confidently in their lives, their professions, and their communities. The Cottey College mission statement clearly enunciates this philosophy:

Cottey College, an independent liberal arts college, educates women to be contributing members of a global society through a challenging curriculum and a dynamic campus experience. In our diverse and supportive environment, women develop their potential for personal and professional lives of intellectual engagement and thoughtful action as learners, leaders, and citizens.

With the help of A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College, we will educate and inspire even more women and become a national model for women’s higher education. We are poised for another defining moment in our beloved College’s history, and you can play an important role.

“A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College will allow more women to realize their dreams and find their voices. With gifts large and small from the thousands of women in the P.E.O. Sisterhood, our alumnae, and other friends of women’s education, more young women will benefit from this extraordinary experience—one that will shape their lives and ours.”

—President, Judy Rogers, Ph.D.

Campaign Priorities
A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College is a $35 million campaign to achieve our strategic goals and the first phase of our Campus Master Plan. More importantly, this campaign is about doing what is necessary to make a Cottey education available and attractive to more young women from across the country and around the world. The campaign includes five priorities:

- Scholarship Endowment $10 million
  To attract students, Cottey’s financial aid must be competitive with other colleges and universities. Today, student needs outpace earnings from scholarship endowments, and as a result the College must draw on the annual operating budget to offer competitive financial aid packages to prospective students.

- Faculty Chairs $3 million
  Endowed faculty chairs bring leadership, initiative, and energy to the College and strengthen already promising programs. An Endowed Faculty Chair Fund will allow the College to attract and retain professors of proven brilliance. The income from the endowed fund may be used to provide full or partial salary support.

- Fine Arts Building $9 million
  The Fine Arts programs and faculty are housed throughout campus in five different buildings. Bringing these scattered programs together to support the goal of becoming a model liberal arts college for women requires demolishing Neale Hall and constructing a 22,000 square foot state-of-the-art facility.

- Library Endowment $3 million
  Upgrading the library will incorporate new technologies, services, and functions into the library. Increasing the library endowment will ensure high quality library technology and acquisitions well into the future.

- Unrestricted Funding $10 million
  The ability to meet all the needs of the campus, respond to unexpected circumstances, or fund new ideas are all functions of unrestricted funding. Everything from salaries and keeping the lights on to campus beautification.

Message from the Chairman
“With this campaign, we have a tremendous opportunity to move Cottey to a higher level of excellence so it can transform more young women’s lives in profound ways.”

—Barbara Andes, Campaign Chairman

Since January 2009, Professor Theresa Burger has traveled over 1,000 miles by bicycle while on her sabbatical. She biked the Lewis and Clark trail through Missouri, the Underground Railroad trail through Ohio, and the Natchez Trace trail through Mississippi. In addition she researched “Old Route 66” and the “Trail of Tears” as possible bike routes.

Professor Michael Denison spent a month in Bangkok, Thailand, this summer, where he visited with his many friends and former students there. He set up a summer job for next year directing shows for the Tourist Organization of Thailand and he was also invited to return at an as yet undecided date to direct an opera in the Bangkok Opera. He is also now part of a team that is negotiating to bring about the attendance of Angelina Jolie at a fundraiser in November for Baan Gerd, an orphanage in upcountry Thailand for children infected with AIDS. Ms. Jolie is a UN ambassador and visits Thailand often.

VP: Do you create/maintain other Web sites as well? If so, which ones?
BH: I made a Web site for my dad about a year ago, but I really haven’t kept it up. There’s no time! :) (I need to get on that...) Right now I’m working for the Starlight Tourist Organization of Thailand, which is to be staged at Cotey this year.

Dr. Julie Tietz graded Advanced Placement psychology exams in Kansas City, Missouri, June 9-15.

The College has received official notification that Professor Ganga Fernando successfully defended her dissertation on August 11, 2009, at Southern Illinois University Carbondale. With the completion of the requirements for her Ph.D. degree, Dr. Fernando’s academic rank will now be that of assistant professor of chemistry. Congratulations to Dr. Fernando on her academic achievement.

Dr. Bruce Holman, professor of art, had a short story, “Channel Crossing,” accepted and published in the Cave Region Review, a publication of North Arkansas College, highlighting the best literature and art from the Ozark region.

Dr. Holman is presently at work designing the 40-foot backdrop for the African opera, “Afiwa,” which is to be staged at Cotey this year.

The employees, students, and alumnae of Cotey College wish a happy retirement to Dr. Mary Emily Kitterman and husband Gary. In addition to education, literature, and her family, Dr. Kitterman’s passions include women’s studies, learning communities, women’s leadership, and cultural diversity. Throughout her lifetime of service, Dr. Kitterman has left a distinctive mark at each institution of higher learning that she has served. The list includes Stephens College, Randolph-Macon College, and Maple Woods Community College.

Cottey friends honored her with contributions to the Library Gift Fund. A list of donors and books purchased was presented to her at the reception.

Fall '09
A Defining Moment! On Friday, September 11, 2009, at 2:00 p.m. I stood before a large audience of delegates and friends at the San Diego international convention of the P.E.O. Sisterhood and announced that Cottey College is launching a comprehensive campaign to raise $35 million over the next five years. It was a defining moment for Cottey College, the culmination of a year-long planning and preparation process that has positioned us to be successful.

Many moments have defined our College over its 125-year history. It was a defining moment for women’s education when, in 1884, Virginia Alice Cottey founded her college, opening the first academic year on September 8, with twenty-eight students. Before the end of the year, enrollment had doubled. Virginia Alice Cottey’s vision for women’s education that led to the founding of the College has not, in fact, changed. It was a vision for an excellent, liberal education, at reasonable rates. From the beginning, Virginia Alice Cottey’s vision embraced growth in enrollment, building the campus, and progress in the educational program. By 1886, just two years after opening, there were 100 students and a new wing was being added to Main Hall. As the College approached its 25th anniversary, Rosemary Hall was planned and constructed. The College flourished with opportunities for athletic teams, music lessons, the development of social skills, and always, an emphasis on women’s education.

It was a defining moment in 1927 when Virginia Alice Cottey offered her College as a gift to the P.E.O. Sisterhood. She had the wisdom to foresee the need for an endowment for the College, and she asked that the Sisterhood raise an endowment of no less than $200,000. Cottey’s need for endowment growth to support the most essential functions of the College has not changed.

The support and ownership of the College were understandably difficult and draining for the Sisterhood during the early years. There was a recommendation to sever P.E.O.’s connection to Cottey slated to be presented at the 1933 convention to be held in Kansas City. Mrs. Zora Y. Knight, president of Supreme Chapter, conceived of the idea for the entire convention delegation to travel from Kansas City to Nevada. I read that it was a splendid October day, that the College and the city welcomed the 743 delegates and 139 visitors proudly and warmly. It was a defining moment for the College. The next day the recommendation to discontinue support of the College was defeated by a large majority.

We have now arrived at another defining moment, the launch of our first-ever comprehensive fundraising campaign. The campaign will be known as A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College. The campaign goals and priorities come directly from our 2011 strategic plan and our campus master plan. They are to raise:

- For Scholarship Endowment $10 million
  - To keep Cottey affordable and our financial aid competitive with other colleges and universities.

- For Endowed Faculty Chairs $3 million
  - To bring additional faculty to the College to strengthen our academic programs.

- For a Fine Arts Building $9 million
  - To bring our excellent fine arts instruction, now housed in five different buildings, together in one new building to support the goal of becoming a model liberal arts college.

- For Library Endowment $3 million
  - To upgrade the library to incorporate new technologies, services, and functions, and to ensure high quality library technology and acquisitions well into the future.

- For Unrestricted Funding $10 million
  - To provide the ability to meet all the needs of the campus, respond to unexpected circumstances, or fund new ideas.

These are the goals and priorities of A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College.

Our campaign has just completed a very successful year-long silent phase led by a nationally recognized consulting firm. We have enlisted a Blue Ribbon Steering Committee that has, in turn, enlisted volunteers for four key committees. Now, it is with excitement and anticipation that we welcome Barbara Andes, immediate past president of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, to the campaign effort as the Campaign Chairman. Barbara brings proven leadership skills, vast knowledge of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, and a high regard for Cottey Sisterhood to the campaign organization.

Helen Kirby ‘52
“I made my pledge to the campaign in order to open the door wider for other young women who would benefit from a Cottey education,” said Helen. “It is our turn as alumnae and P.E.O.s to polish this gem and share it with the world.”

A Defining Moment: The Campaign for Cottey College offers an unprecedented opportunity to advance the mission of an institution for women, by women, and about women. Remember, the P.E.O. Sisterhood’s generosity funds only a portion of our goals. Additional gifts, large and small, are necessary if we are to fulfill the dreams of more young women for decades to come. All gifts are deeply appreciated, and we will steward them with care.

Two Comets Honored by NJCAA for Academic Achievement

Two Cottey College Comets were recently honored by the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) for their academic achievements.

Basketball player Brittany Smith was awarded the Distinguished Academic All-American Award by the NJCAA with a 3.9 overall GPA (four semesters). Smith is attending Missouri State University this fall majoring in speech pathology.

Volleyball player Lauren Jenkins was awarded Academic All-American honors with a 3.76 overall GPA (four semesters). Jenkins is attending the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Smith and Jenkins were both NJCAA Region XVI All-Region selections each of their two years at Cottey College and graduated with honors.

In addition, the 2008-09 Comets’ basketball team placed fifth overall in NJCAA national honors of team GPA with a 3.42 average. This ranking included all NJCAA colleges who competed in basketball in Divisions I, II, and III in 2008-09.

Summertime!

Commencement comes and goes, the Vacation College participants are here for a week, and then the campus gets quiet for the summer—except for a week in late June when dozens of high school students come for a week of study in music, dance, and science. Held this year June 21-27, students from across the country came to participate in Cottey’s Summer Programs.

The Music and Dance Workshops are for girls currently in grades nine, ten, and eleven who wish to study music or dance in a college environment. Participants have the opportunity to live on campus while exploring and developing their interest in biology, chemistry, computer science, logic, mathematics, and physics.

Previously known as Sciencescape, the Exploring Careers in Science Workshop is for girls currently in grades nine, ten, and eleven who wish to study science and mathematics in a college environment. Participants have the opportunity to live on campus while exploring and developing their interest in biology, chemistry, computer science, logic, mathematics, and physics.

Of the students who begin the year each fall at Cottey College, approximately 20 of them have been past participants in one of the summer programs. Oftentimes it is their first contact with Cottey, and the positive experience they have influences their decision to apply and attend.

This next summer, the camps are scheduled for June 13-19. More information is available on the Summer Programs page on the Cottey Web site. Applications will be available in January.

The annual rite of fall began again as new students moved to Cottey College and Nevada. First-year students began arriving Friday, August 21, followed shortly thereafter by the arrival of the second-year students on Sunday, August 23.

Almost perfect weather greeted the students and families as they began unloading cars full of boxes, bags, and crates. Missouri weather—notoriously hot and humid in late August—was unseasonably mild and dry. Although students, parents, and orientation leaders were tired by the end of the day from moving belongings into the halls, no one was drained from the heat.

One of the first welcoming activities for students and families was the annual community picnic at Marmaduke Park on Saturday, August 22. Everyone in the Nevada community was invited to the picnic, and there is no charge. The picnic is paid for by Nevada Tourism through the Chamber of Commerce as a way of letting students know they are a valued member of their new home away from home.

Officially, the beginning of the academic year arrived with Opening Convocation on Monday, August 24, in the Haidee and Allen Wild Center for the Arts Auditorium. Miriam Kindred, Cottey Class of 1951, and the first female branch manager for E.F. Hutton, was the honored speaker at convocation. (see sidebar) Immediately following her talk, the students participated in one of the oldest traditions on campus, the Signing of the Cottey Book. Since 1935, students have signed their names in the Cottey Book pledging their desire to possess Cottey spirit and a willingness to uphold the ideals, standards, and traditions of Cottey College. Signing the Cottey Book is also a symbolic pledge to uphold the Honor System.

After signing the Cottey Book, students are then given a daisy by student government leaders. The Daisy Tradition began in 1990. It symbolizes the tie between past and future classes of Cottey graduates. Each new student was given a daisy to signify her membership in her class.

With these traditions, another year at Cottey began, tying the incoming class to those that came before.

The students shown above are legacies among the first-year class. Each of these women had a relative—sister, mother, grandmother, or aunt—who also attended Cottey College. Pictured are: Megan Odle, sister of Ashley Odle ’03; Jill Jurgens, sister of Allison Jurgens ’06; Ashley Dittman, sister of Hillary Dittman ’08; Rutendo Sigauke, sister of Tapiwa Sigauke ’08; Molly Jones, sister of Chelsea Jones ’09; Leslie Spencer, sister of Tiffinie Spencer ’10; Jasmine Kai, sister of Jade Kai ’05; Katherine Singleton, niece of Suzanne Porter Roach ’72; Sarah Tyre, niece of Christine Tyre ’81; Madeline Swidergal, sister of Alexandra Swidergal ’08; Laurie Woodruff, sister of Katie Woodruff ’09; Rachel LaGrou, sister of Blomeli LaGrou ’04; and Jessica Davis, daughter of Julie Carrick Davis ’81.

Convocation Speaker Miriam Kindred ’51

“T he idea of going into a man’s field—it never dawned on me,” said Miriam Kindred ’51 in a 1978 interview with the Dallas Morning News. After 13 years of working as a medical technologist, she walked into an investment firm in Amarillo, Texas, and asked for a job. Following a battery of psychological and aptitude tests, the firm’s manager agreed to sponsor her through the training to become a stockbroker. Over the next 40 years of her career, Mrs. Kindred became known nationally as a successful stockbroker and financial planner.

As the honored speaker during the Opening Convocation for Cottey’s 126th Opening of the College, Kindred spoke of her experiences as a woman working in what was then a man’s world.

In 1966, Mrs. Kindred obtained her Registered Securities License while working at Schneider, Bernet & Hickman in Amarillo, Texas. She then transferred to firms owned by Kidder Peabody and Merrill Lynch. In 1970, Mrs. Kindred went to E.F. Hutton in Lubbock, Texas. Soon after, she and her family moved to Dallas, Texas. In 1976, Mrs. Kindred was named a top producer in the E.F. Hutton office. She became a certified financial planner following a year of night classes.

In 1978, Mrs. Kindred became the first woman branch office manager of E.F. Hutton, where she managed eight brokers. As manager, she hired and trained twenty new brokers. After five years, she resigned from management to return to full-time production. In 1986, Mrs. Kindred became regional equity coordinator of the Southwest region of Hutton. During her tenure with E.F. Hutton, she took numerous continuing education courses sponsored by Hutton, gave financial seminars for women’s groups, and spoke to the women in training courses in New York for Hutton.

Miriam Kindred was recognized in Money Magazine as being one of the best brokers in America, and she was known as a super technician and student of the market. She was always a leader in production at the E.F. Hutton office as well as a team player who always had time to help others when they needed it. Mrs. Kindred was featured in several articles in both regional and national media during her career.

Following her distinguished career with E.F. Hutton, she joined Smith Barney Harris Upham, where she became a member of the Century Club. Mrs. Kindred served four years as resident manager of Smith Barney’s Galleria office in Dallas, Texas, while maintaining full-time production. She then moved to Plano, Texas, to help seed a new branch office for Smith Barney. In 2006, after 40 years in the financial industry, Mrs. Kindred retired as first vice president of wealth management.

Mrs. Kindred holds the Associate in Arts degree from Cottey College and a bachelor’s degree from North Texas State University.
Mary Lou Steele Mastain ‘47 and husband Dick recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. Dick Mastain and Mary Lou Steele were wed on August 28, 1949, in Whittier, California, shortly after they graduated from Whittier College. Mr. Mastain earned a master’s degree in 1954 from Claremont Graduate School in Claremont, California, and an Ed.D. from the University of Southern California. Mrs. Mastain earned a master’s degree from the University of California at Sacramento in 1980. The couple worked a combined 65 years as teachers and education administrators in California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and two years in the Peace Corps in Nigeria.

Mary Lou Steele Mastain ‘47 and husband Dick

In honor of her grandparents, Jooselyn Ivanov presented a vocal recital at the First Methodist Church in Ashland for their 60th wedding anniversary. Dick and Mary’s family came for the weekend, holding three family parties for them. Daughters Carey and Juli Mastain, son-in-law Liviu Ivanov and granddaughter, Josie, had the first party at the community center. The next night their son, Rick, daughter-in-law, Annie, and grandchildren Courtney and Hank hosted another party at the family’s cottage. Their third daughter, Mardi Mastain and Robin Donaldson had the last party at their home in Ashland. Each celebration was unique, and enjoyed by all 12 family members.

Dick and Mary moved to Ashland, Oregon, in the early 1990s. Mr. Mastain enjoys playing tennis and bridge, the Fourth Wednesday Book Club, the Galimaufry group, and, along with his wife, is an active member in the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Mastain volunteers at the Ashland Chamber of Commerce, belongs to P.E.O. and the Fortnightly Study Club. She also leads walks in Lithia Park for the Ashland Parks and Recreation Department.

Former CCAA Board members had a reunion in Louisville after Linda attended a watercolor workshop at Arrowmont in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, in late July 2009.

Kulsum (Sunderji) Davidson ‘64 got married to Hollis Davidson, an American, which created quite a bit of commotion with her family after leaving Cottey. She did complete her undergraduate degree in history from Carlow University in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and eventually got a master’s degree in child and youth care administration from Nova Southeastern University in Orlando, Florida. She has been working as Director of Wesley Spectrum In-Home Child and Family Services for the entire Allegheny County for a good many years. Kulsum has four children and all of them are married and have children of their own. If Dr. Dow were alive, she would be very proud to see her influence throughout Kulsum’s family. Dr. Dow was her inspiration and an outstanding role model on how to be a leader. Kulsum has thought about her often and breathed a prayer for her many times and thanked Dr. Dow in her soul for Dr. Dow’s encouragement and faith in her.

A group of Cottey alumnae from three different classes, but all from P.E.O. Hall, Illinois Reeves Suite, got together this past June for a mini-reunion (photo above). There were eight from the years 1975-1978 and several had not seen each other in over 32 years!! They all live in different places around the country but decided to meet in Chicago. They had so much fun and laughed so hard, that they are having another mini-reunion in June 2011 in Denver. They hope that more Cottey friends will decide to join them then. They had a blast sharing pictures and their lives with each other, and like most Cottey alumnae, it was like the hands of time were turned back, to all the fun times they had together. They helped each other recollect things that they definitely would never have remembered by themselves! Did they mention that they laughed and laughed?

Jennie Olsen ‘79 spent the day in Chicago with Marian (Cullen) Verclytte ‘79 and had a great time. Marian is still living in Paris and is a single mom raising her son and daughter after recently losing her husband to brain cancer in February of this year. Marion would love to hear from her Cottey friends at 17 rue Ernest Renan, 75015, Paris, France. Jennie is still working at a VA hospital near Chicago and caring for her father.

Dawn Larsen ‘81 spent the summer on a research trip to South Texas and Mexico where she studied Mexican tent shows. She hopes to include this research in an upcoming book on American Toby shows. She also just returned from taking two fine arts students to Burning Man, a week long artist gathering of 48,000 in the Black Rock desert in Nevada (the state). After her production of Sam Shepard’s Buried Child on Halloween weekend at Francis Marion University, she plans to take a nap.

Betsy Hoiusm ‘89 of Minneapolis, Minnesota, left yesterday on a trip to China that is being funded, in part, through the Lucille Smith Scholarship for Foreign Study. She’s not sure how much computer access she will have, but intends to write about her adventures when she can.

1990s

Heather Hurlbert '91 recently competed in a national competition and won the title of “National Pastry Chef of the Year.” It was held by the American Culinary Federation at their National Convention in Orlando in July (10-14). Held annually, chefs, pastry chefs, and industry educators are first nominated in their state and then compete at the regional level. She competed in Charlotte in April at the Southeast regional conference in a cookoff (a hot dessert contest for four people in one hour) and won. Then she went to the national conference and competed with three other regional finalists (West, Central, and Northeast) for the National title. In Orlando, Heather made a cold dessert (six plates), a hot dessert (six plates), and a torte in three hours. After Cottey, she continued on to the Culinary Institute of America. Currently, she is the executive pastry chef at Cherokee Town and Country Club in Atlanta, Georgia. It has been ranked the #1 country club in the U.S. for the past 12 years. Heather is very proud to have won this title working in an industry dominated by men. She is currently working towards getting her CMPC (Certified Master Pastry Chef) certification. There are only 13 CMPCs in the U.S. and if she passes the rigorous eight-day testing, Heather would be the first female CMPC. She hopes this will inspire all future female culinarians and students alike!

2000s

Aimee Starlin '02 accepted a new job as the community relations director for the Nevada (Missouri) Regional Medical Center. She began her duties in August.

Nichole Marie Jackson '04 is currently going to Iraq for deployment until May 2010. Tiffany (Jackson) Craig ’04 recently met her in Savannah during a two-day break. Nichole writes “Cottey friends are some of my closest life-long friends I have and are the most sincere friends I have. Without the friendships and education I received during my time at Cottey College, I would not be the woman I am today. After Cottey I got my bachelor’s degree in civil engineering from Oregon State University. Again, this would not have been possible without the lessons learned at Cottey. I do not wish to brag about my achievements; however, I write this e-mail as a thank you. Going to Iraq with the Army has made it possible for me to realize how special my achievements are, as well as realize the people, opportunities, and friendships along the way that made it possible. Cottey College was an opportunity for me that I will never forget. Anyway just wanted to send a note to say Thank you. ” Thank you Nichole for sharing your story.

A Message From Your CCAA

Gatherings

Recently, the Class of ‘64, my class, celebrated our 45th reunion at Cottey. One may think that after so many years the shine of our alma mater may have dulled. But no! We returned to the mountaintop and found that the magic still exists. We gathered together in the hallowed halls of our beloved school and reminisced about the fun and hijinks, the growth and friendship we experienced here many years ago. We shared our successes, loves, families, and losses during a very powerful weekend.

One of the gifts we, as Cottey alumnae, have been given is our sense of belonging to this place and to the other women who have shared Cottey with us. Whether young or not so young, whether Class of ’64 or ’04, whether we know each other or not, we are all connected through Cottey College – we are all sisters together–Cottey women in your community, city, and state. You have sisters in the world that you have yet to meet. With Cottey as our common ground, we can spark new friendships and develop meaningful relationships with women of all ages and backgrounds. Cottey alumnae have intelligence, grace, and who among us doesn’t need more of that in her life?

Cottey College celebrates 125 years of educating women this year.

In any world that is cause for celebration. Gatherings are happening in every state. Rekindle the magic of your Cottey days! Look for opportunities, no, make opportunities to gather together to share, to laugh, and to celebrate with each other. Get acquainted with your sisters and get reacquainted with Cottey.

Call, e-mail, or write to the Office of Alumnae Relations to inquire about Cottey alumnae in your area. Carrie Reeves, coordinator of alumnae relations, can be reached at 417-667-8181, extension 2122. The e-mail address of the Office of Alumnae Relations is alumnae@cottey.edu. The mailing address for the College is 1000 W. Austin, Nevada, MO 64772.

Rekindle the magic of your Cottey days. Connect with your Cottey sisters – celebrate the Cottey connection!

Last issue, the Cottey College Alumnae Association introduced its 1 • 2 • 5 initiative to celebrate the 125th anniversary of Cottey College. Help the CCAA with the following:

ONE alumnae gathering in each state in the month of September. Let Cottey know if you are interested in organizing or helping organize an event in your area. The alumnae office will send out invitations and assist you with all of the planning and execution of the event. The point person just has to pick a place, date, and time. We have secured point people in the following states: Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, Washington, and Wyoming. If you see your area, plan to attend. If you don’t see your area, offer to be the point person. We want this to be a fun way of meeting other Cottey alumnae in your area.

TWO percent increase in class giving. Have you donated this year? Make a commitment to donate every year even if it is $10. It’s the percentage of alumnae giving that counts! To be included in this year’s giving report, the deadline is JUNE 30. Go to www.cotteycommunity.org/give and donate online.

FIVE more young women know about Cottey. Talk to your daughters, nieces, granddaughters, neighbors, and church friends about your experiences at Cottey. Think how your life would be different if someone hadn’t told you about Cottey.

Mark Your Calendars!

Cottey Alumna Creates Online Labor of Love

Editor’s Note: Several of us at Cottey have been following a Web site that caught our eyes: Cotteyphile.com. Over time, this project of a recent alumna has grown into a quite extensive history site featuring lots of interesting facts and historic photos you probably won’t see anywhere else outside of the Cottey archives. We haven’t been the only ones who’ve noticed, though. The Viewpoint has received e-mails from alumnae impressed with the site too, and they have asked us to write about it. In fact, Cotteyphile has a Facebook fan page with over 500 members! The creator of Cotteyphile is Brianne Hoppe, Class of 2006. We caught up with her via e-mail to ask a few questions.

VP: When did you begin this ambitious project and why?

BH: I began Cotteyphile in January of 2008. The original idea was to put details and photos of all the Cottey suites online for prospective students, so they could request suites that suited them. (It seems like such a random idea now!) Additionally, in fall of 2007 I had made a Cottey ‘zine with my suitemate Jocelyn Myers. We wrote about our experiences at Cottey, current happenings, etc. This changed the focus of the future site from suite-oriented to Cottey as a whole. When I launched the site in 2008, it wasn’t so much about history as it was about Cottey culture—that has gradually changed, and now it’s truly a history site.

VP: Did you/do you do all of the creative work on this yourself, or have you had help?

BH: I do the web/graphic design, writing, and researching. I scan almost everything myself, excepting the photos and scans that people send me. Annette Dunaway has generously lent me many of her yearbooks and other Cottey documents, and other alumnae have sent photos from their time at Cottey.

VP: This looks like TONS of work. Did you plan for it to become such a big site so quickly?

BH: The site can be a lot of work. It has built up gradually, though. I do an update every Monday—usually it’s a new article or an addition to an existing page. (And it must always have photos!) I planned for it to be a never-ending project—and that’s why I favor the Web site over the book.

VP: How much time do you spend working on the site, tweeting, and facebooking each week?

BH: On average I spend 20 hours on the site each week, which includes everything from scanning to researching to coding. I don’t really count the twittering and facebooking though.

VP: How many different people submit material to your site? Do you have anyone who checks facts for you on dates?

BH: So far, I’ve only received material from about a dozen people. Obviously Annette has provided much of it. Most of the other submissions are photos. People tend not to send me anything until we’ve established some kind of personal relationship. I don’t have any go-to person for fact-checking. That would be great! I am, however, very focused on accuracy, which is why I cite every source and make sure that multiple sources are reporting the same facts.

VP: Where did you transfer after Cottey and what was your major?

BH: I transferred to the Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, and majored in sociology and diversity studies.

he Cotey Comets volleyball team is having a bit of a rough start to the season. As of the Viewpoint deadline, they were 0-6 on the year. Although the win column is empty, this team is tenacious and intends to continue improving every match.

“We are carrying two returners from last year, and the other eight are freshmen,”
said head coach Marla Kannady Foreman. “I have capable players in every position, but we do lack some height this year, unlike last year. However, I am confident that as the season goes along, we will show some fans that we are capable of holding our own in the games. Passing has been a definite positive for us in the skill work, so I am counting on it to make up for our lack of height.”

The two experienced players from last year are Janelle Crowell, a 5’10” outside/middle hitter from Indiana, and Chrissy Echeverria, a 5’9” outside hitter from Arizona. Crowell has shown amazing improvement from her first year, and Echeverria provides solid play as well.

The first-year players for the Comets are Chevelle Francis, Andrea Hass, Kailey
Kelly, Natalie Larsen, Madeline Swider-gal, Kate Whitaker, and two players from Nevada High School in Nevada, Missouri: Taylor Means and Emily Moore.

The Comets are young, and often face schools with deep benches full of experienced players. Some of the schools the Comets compete against are four-year institutions with players in their junior and senior years. That was the case when Cotey opened the season on the road against Ozark Christian College in Joplin, Missouri. OCC is a four-year school that returned every starter from a squad that went to the national tournament in their division of Christian colleges. That experience was a key factor as they swept the Comets.

There was no break for the Comets as they then taveled to Lee’s Summit, Missouri, to face
perennial powerhouse Longview Community College. Longview is either the number one or two team in the region/district tournament
each year, and is often nationally ranked as well. Although Longview defeated Cotey, Foreman was pleased with some things she saw in this match.

“We played up a step from our match in Joplin,” said Foreman about game one.
“Our serve receive and overall passing has improved. We kept with them throughout the first set, and made some really great plays along the way. Our serving did not hinder us, and it is nice to have a team that is capable of serving this well, this early in the season.”

After two road trips against tough opoponents, the Comets finally got to play at home on September 5 when they hosted a tri-match with Labette County Community College and Ft. Scott Community College.

A packed house greeted the Comets as they took the court for the first home match of the season. Despite the team’s struggles on the court, it was a loud crowd in Hinkhouse Center and they showed their appreciation for every point
the Comets scored from the opening serve through the final score.

In the first match against Labette, the Comets came out cold against the Lady Cardinals, fell behind early, and could not make up the difference. But in game two, it looked like a completely different Comets team as they jumped out to a commanding 11-6 lead with great serving and pinpoint passing. Cotey built an 18-9 lead and maintained the advantage
through the end of the game.

Game three was a tight battle, with slim
leads by both teams before Labette outscored Cotey 5-9 over the next few minutes to take control of the game.

Despite being down 1-2, the Comets gave the crowd one of the best games of the day in the fourth and final game. This game had it all: close scores, long nal-lies, great passing, and a crowd that was defe n ing at times. Cotey had a slim 7-6 lead early when Labette was penalized for having a player out of rotation.
The Comets were awarded a point and held an 8-6 lead before the Cardinals tied it up at nine. Both teams traded points and remained tied through 13, before Labette grabbed a 15-18 lead and Cotey called a timeout. Both teams earned a point before Labette squeaked ahead 17-
22. Following another Comets’ timeout, Cotey went on the offensive and scored three consecutive points to pull within two at 20-22. By this time the fans in Hinkhouse were fired up and saw one of the longest rallies of the entire day on the next point. Unfortunately for the home crowd, it went to Labette and they were able to close out the game and match.

In the second match, the Comets again came out cold in game one as the Greyhounds built an early lead and pulled away for a relatively easy win.

The second game was a much better contest as the Comets had an early lead at 4-3. The teams were tied at 13, and neither team could gain an advantage as the scores went from Cotey holding a one-point lead to being tied. The Comets managed to build the lead to 19-16, and then to 21-17, seeming to take control of the game. Everything went wrong from that point for the Comets, however, as they did not score another point in the game, and a four-point lead turned into a four-point loss.

In the final game of the day, the Comets fell behind early, but fought back to a 14-all tie. They only trailed by two at 17-19, before the Greyhounds used their height advantage and pulled away for the win
and the sweep.

The following Monday, the Comets hit
the road to face another team with more height and more depth on the bench and were defeated by Northeast Oklahoma
A&M Community College.

“It seems like all the opponents are loaded with height, depth, and/or experience this year,” said Foreman. “We are obviously building from graduating six sophomores last year, and I really don’t think the win/loss record shows how much this year’s team has improved since the first match. It’s definitely going to be a character building experience for everyone.”

Despite starting 0-6 out of the gate,
neither the team or the coach has lost faith. In fact, as the Viewpoint was going to press, Foreman sent a message to campus. “I have a great group of young ladies who are willing to work hard and get better, and we have definitely seen some improvement since our first match.
We have been constantly tweaking our line-up, so that we can have the best rotations going for us in a game. Our day will come and we will soar like eagles... and it’s coming very soon. I can just feel it in the air!”

Visit the Volleyball page on the Cot-ey Web site to keep up with the young team’s progress. The schedule for the rest of the season is on page 10. Find a game near you and come cheer for the Comets!

Fully realizing, we trust, the great fact that God has called woman to a high and holy destiny in that He has commissioned her to be a co-laborer with Himself in the great work of enlightening and saving the world, we desire to open a school that shall have for its prime object the adjustment of woman to this her natural and God-given relation.

On September 8, 1884, Virginia Alice Cottey read those words to her first twenty-eight students in what is now the center portion of Main Hall. It was her vision from the preface to the first catalog.

On September 8, 2009, Cottey student Emily Fried ’10, a member of the College’s 125th Anniversary Committee, read those same words to an audience in the Auditorium of the Haidee and Allen Wild Center for the Arts prior to a performance by the Wylliams/Henry Contemporary Dance Company.

The crowd celebrated before the performance with the proclamation from the City of Nevada designating that day as “Cottey College Quasquicentennial Day” and after the performance, all were invited to enjoy special mini cupcakes and punch from Food Service (photo below).

As many of the College’s administrative staff were attending International Convention of the P.E.O. Sisterhood, the grand celebration of “One Vision–125 Years” is scheduled for Saturday, September 26. On that day a special showcase and open house is planned for the public to see not only the buildings they drive past daily, but to experience some of what goes on inside as well. Visitors will be able to see a jazz band rehearsal, Dr. Fowler’s chemistry lab will be in session, selected suites will be available for touring, and some administrative offices will be open as well. Because the Viewpoint deadline is in advance of this event, coverage will be in the winter issue.

Virginia Alice Cottey would be proud of what has been accomplished in 125 years. Happy Quasquicentennial Cottey College! May you have another glorious 125 years ahead.
